Sojourn '94

"When I was your age . . ."

Don't you just hate hearing that phrase? So did I. I vowed I'd never use it when I became the age of those who once directed it at me — but as one approaches "that age", one finds more and more reason to use it. It's a vicious circle.

When I was approaching the age of high school graduation, however, it was a tumultuous time in our nation's history. The war in Vietnam raged thousands of miles away, yet it was also being waged intellectually and psychologically in the streets of our cities and the classrooms of our colleges and universities. A nation already stung by the assassinations of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Senator Robert Kennedy had become polarized, pitting generation against generation and obscuring the ideals those men represented.

In many ways, it was a very unhappy time in which to be growing up. Yet at the same time, idealism survived. It was easy to believe that noble ideals could become reality if you embraced them passionately enough.

In the midst of these confusing influences, however, I recall something that was as uplifting to me as the war was frightening; the Apollo moon missions, moments of scientific triumph that briefly took our minds off our national tragedies. I recall the flickering black-and-white TV images of Neil Armstrong setting mankind's first foot upon the moon, and the voices of astronauts reading scriptures while orbiting a chunk of rock more than 200,000 miles from earth.

In retrospect, one can debate the massive expenditures devoted to space exploration while pressing social problems at home went unattended, or the political correctness of broadcasting readings from one faith to a world of many faiths. However, no one can debate the fact that each of the men who were sent on lunar missions returned with their lives and perspectives forever changed — altered by the vision of that solitary, shining blue orb in the blackness of space.

It was home, so tiny and fragile in the context of the solar system. From thousands of miles away, there was no indication of man's existence, no evidence of his achievements, and no reminders of his mistakes.

It all seemed to make so much sense — "Hey, guys, this is the only home we have!" — yet how well did we listen?

In the quarter-century that has followed, much has changed. There are fewer reasons to fear mass destruction through global war, yet more reasons to fear gradual destruction of our planet through pollution and waste of its dwindling natural resources. Despite the technological advances of the time, more people are dying of hunger now than ever before in the history of the world.

And here at home, a generation of Americans has grown up without the fear of being sent against its will to fight in jungles on the other side of the world — yet from the daily headlines, it seems as if war is still being waged by the young, with drugs at the root of the conflict.

In so many ways, it seems the idealism of the Sixties failed to survive when its chief proponents started graying at the temples in the Nineties. The great advances in civil rights of that era have not erased race hatred and religious intolerance today. The women's movement promised to bring equality and respect to the next generation, yet equality in the workplace still does not exist, and respect is also lagging; many entertainment forms today are more degrading to women than ever before.

In so many ways, we dropped the ball.

The Love Generation became cynical and selfish once it reached middle age. Idealism takes effort to become reality, and that effort may have been too great a price to pay in a society in which clear cable television reception is more important to taxpayers of a community than funding public education.

In other words, it's easy to envision a world united in spirit and purpose. Getting there is another story — and it will take a renewed idealism, coupled with a sense of purpose and a belief in the capability of mankind to progress beyond its limitations, for the next generation to continue the work that the previous one abandoned.

If that vision's still there, I honestly hope you'll see it someday — because it's your turn.

"In other words, it's easy to envision a world united in spirit and purpose. Getting there is another story — and it will take a renewed idealism, coupled with a sense of purpose and a belief in the capability of mankind to progress beyond its limitations, for the next generation to continue the work that the previous one abandoned."

It is often said that music is a universal language that has the power to transcend boundaries and unite people from diverse backgrounds. I have the privilege of conducting the Tanglewood Music Center Orchestra, made up of student musicians on the threshold of professional careers. They come from across the state and across the ocean, and have never performed together before, but they are united in a common purpose, that of creating a musical performance of the highest caliber.

Because of the communications revolution and the information highway which now spans the globe, in many ways we are already one world and one people.

As you and members of your generation prepare yourselves for positions of leadership in the 21st century, you will become ever more aware that events in seemingly remote areas of the world impact directly or indirectly on us all. If we seek the similarities which bond humankind together on this fragile planet, rather than our differences, we will know a world where peace and justice prevail.

Each of you, as graduates of Norton High School, will make a difference each in your own special way. I wish you all great success.

Revolutions of the World

THE HANDSHAKE OF PEACE

President Clinton, who guided Arafat and Rabin towards their historic handshake, called it a "great occasion of history and hope." "Salaam", "Shalom".

MIDWEST FLOODS

It was the biggest, wettest story of the summer. The floods that washed across the Midwest may have been the worst in American history, and they captured the concern of people across the nation. The great flood was the story that most interested Americans in the summer of 1993, with nearly two of three telling pollsters that they followed the story "very closely" — on a par with attention paid in years past to the Persian Gulf War.

CIVIL WAR IN BOSNIA

Croatia and Muslim-dominated Bosnia-Herzegovina initially allied against the more powerful Serbs, but their alliance dissolved amidst bitter turf battles between Croats and Muslims in the second half of 1993.

SOMALIA

The world was drawn to Somalia in 1992 by photographs of starving children. It was almost driven away the following year by photographs of fighting adults.

The latter pictures — notably one of a captured serviceman being dragged through the streets of the captital, Mogadishu — symbolized the difficulty a 33-country United Nations force had coping with a country that had descended into feudalism.

MICHAEL JORDAN

One of the biggest stories of the 1993-1994 basketball season occurred before the first pre-season exhibition game. Michael Jordan, the world's best basketball player and one of its most famous athletes, announced his retirement. Jordan's retirement came after he led the Chicago Bulls to three straight National Basketball Association championships, the most recent a victory over the Phoenix Suns in the 1993 finals.

ATTEMPTED COUP IN RUSSIA

Russia, one of the world's greatest powers, experienced political upheaval in 1993. The world economy was stunned by the sight of fire raging uncontrollably inside the stately parliament building. When the smoke cleared the rebellion was crushed, and its leaders — including speaker Ruslan Khasbulatov and former Security Minister Viktor Barannikov — were in jail.

SEINFELD

The show started off as an upstart, but by the time they finished handing out the prime time Emmy Awards on Sept. 29, 1993, "Seinfeld" was a member of the sitcom Old Boys Club. The NBC program took home three trophies, making it one of the night's two biggest winners, along with "Picket Fences."

"Seinfeld," which features the comic misadventures of the New York comedian and his friends, was named best comedy series.

HEALTH CARE REFORM

Mrs. Clinton, who chaired the White House task force on health care reform, said "I have a mother, too, so if we can't pass the mother test, we're in trouble."

Mr. Wheeler, how shall we miss thee?

After 16 years as principal of NHS, Mr. Wheeler has decided to turn in his pencils in exchange for a hammer at Jimmy Carter's 'Habitat' in Florida. One wonders what motivates him towards continued public service. When questioned, a look of bewilderment passes over his face. Coming from a family of seven, he considers himself very lucky for the opportunities that were presented to him. "I just think it's time for payback. What's good enough for Jimmy Carter is good enough for me." In his time here at NHS, he has seen the drop-out rate plummet, the test scores and acceptances to colleges rise dramatically, and been through two successful evaluations. Mr. Wheeler believes that his philosophy of "pride, scholarship, and sportsmanship" has influenced this school.

Mr. Wheeler hopes his message of continuing service to others will live on. Mr. Wheeler, thank you for dedicating such a major portion of your life to us. We wish you the best of luck and happiness in the future.

Mr. Wheeler's participation in the festivities of Homecoming often included congratulating members of the Homecoming Court.

The Honor Society inductions foster a sense of pride and accomplishment in Mr. Wheeler who has watched his students improve academically over the years.

Dr. Splaine and Mr. Wheeler share an atypical power lunch.

Sportsmanship and ethics policies for high school athletics are serious topics that concern Athletic Director Howard Kelley and Principal Daniel Wheeler.

Although she is with friends Abbie Wanamaker and Dylan Ribeiro, Amy Allsop seems unhappy about being at school after hours.

Nothing, absolutely nothing, gets between Eric April and his homeward-bound bus.

"Outta my way, Katie Wheeler, I want to get home!" states Christie Devine.

Smile wider, Nicole Hamilton, and maybe Shannon Bertram will give you that apple.

"I know my mind has gotta be in here somewhere. . ." thinks Kristen Bischoff.

Can you beat a speeding wheelchair, Deirdre Maher?

"YOU WILL TAKE THIS DOLLAR!" growls Andre Mills.

Buses have been a part of all our lives and left both good and bad memories. "The closest thing to a near death experience," comments Seth McEttrick. All that Cliff Zawasky had to say was, "The wheels on the bus go round and round, if we're lucky."

I was strolling through the parking lot one day. . .

Afternoon Adventures

Majorettes Merrie Moore, Rebecca Bischoff and Kim Kenefick improved their style and grace by taking lessons in karate for their competition.

Overflowing with Norton pride, Heather O'Neill and Jillian Larson lightened our spirits at a Lancer football game.

Neither rain, sleet nor hail prevented these dedicated fans from supporting the Lancer football team.

An up-and-coming star, Lorie Navedo put up a shot for the Lady Lancers.

In deep concentration, Dan Rhodes and Nate Eckstrom listened for the next direction from the drum major.

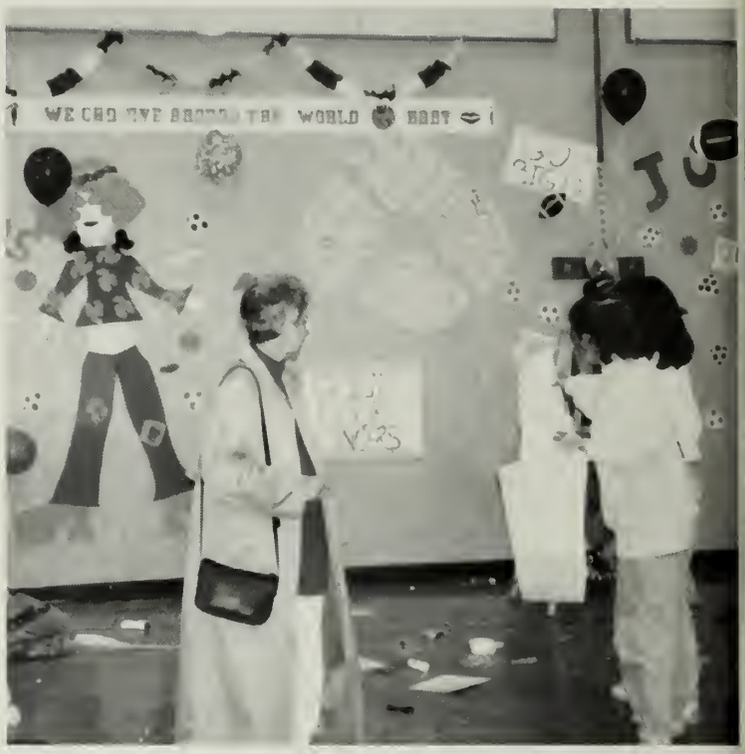
"Founding fathers" Liam Malloy and Seth McEttrick reconstruct the United States in a new and different way.

While munching on a slice of pizza, Paul Dougherty contemplated life and the world around him.

"There's nothing to this, Christina Maginnis," says the mighty Matt Drane.

Pride and Performance

The Homecoming Game puts the skills of the football team to the test in the school's most heavily attended athletic event. To psyche up our football players, the Pep Rally was held the previous night in the gym decorated by spirited representatives from each class. Amid the cheers of the crowd and the musical excitement created by the band, the Homecoming Court was announced, and members of the fall sports teams provided the humor of the evening through the performance of hilarious parodies. A universal Lancer spirit spread amongst all who attended as did the certainty that October 30th would bring a brilliant victory for the NHS Lancer football team.



Although Mrs. Vital is a valuable and inspirational adviser to the junior class, she draws the line at dressing for a 'jive around the world.'

A beautiful and spirited Nicole Green accepts her flowers from Mr. Wheeler.

With the hopes of creating the most inspiring wall, sophomores Jenn Sireci, Sarah Galante, Kristine Newcomb, and adviser Mrs. DiModica put the final touches on their masterpiece.

Musical Luminaries

After a long season of being one of the school's most visible spirit suppliers, the band threw off their uniforms in favor of party clothes for one of the most anticipated nights of the year — the Band Banquet! Not even a power outage could keep the '93 "bandoes" from dancing after an energizing dinner and awards ceremony highlighted by the premiere performance of Carrie Zawislak, solo soprano. Much to the surprise of their parents, everyone dropped to the floor for the band's unofficial anthem 'Rock Lobster'. Despite their lack of dancing prowess, however, band members are forever indebted to their parents for their love and support without which the Lancer Marching Band could not exist.

Mutual thanks were exchanged by Mr. MacMullen, dedicated and patient band director, and Michelle Poirot, President of the Lancer B.

Feelings of love and friendship between band members were evident at the yearly celebration ending the marching band season.

During the awards ceremony several band members congratulated others for their achievement.

"Oh, What a Night!"

The Prom of 1993 was a gala evening enjoyed by all. Organized by the junior class and its advisers, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. D'Onofrio, Mrs. Ford, and Ms. Dziejma, the festivities were held at the scenic Lakeview Pavilion in Foxboro. Limousine followed limousine into the parking lot, and from them emerged a wide spectrum of colors and styles, similar only in their sophistication and elegance. Couples and friends alike danced, chatted, and listened to music in the exquisite atmosphere. For all who attended, especially Kristine Royal and her court, it was truly a 'Time to Remember'.

As she is crowned 1993's Prom Queen, Kristine Royal receives congratulations from Dr. Splaine.

Into the Light

Honor Society inductions are an important part of the traditions of Norton High School. Each year, selected students are honored for their particular excellence by being inducted into the Quill and Scroll Society, the National Honor Society, the Art Honor Society, or the Spanish Honor Society. The students are expected to fulfill several hours of community service, to provide services to the other students, to be leaders outside the school as well as in class, and to maintain high grades.

Mr. Wheeler shows N.H.S.'s appreciation of Julie Simpson's academic efforts with a National Honor Society certificate.

Kimberly Kenefick lights the candle in the "clay of creativity" as part of the National Art Honor Society induction.

Rachael Amaral is rewarded for her mastery in Spanish at the Spanish Honor Society induction.

The solemn moment of inducting the new Quill and Scroll Honor Society members fills the faces of Cliff Zawasky, Mike Mackinder, Seth McEttrick, Bekki Moore, and Matt Drane with grave expressions.

Long live the Queen!" A jubilant Natalie Talbott is crowned by Mr. Maher.

Midnight Masquerade

Following a thrilling win against the Scituate Sailors on October 30th, the victorious Lancers and their fans returned home to prepare for the first of two major dances of the school year, this one sponsored by the Honor Societies and the Student Council. Upon entering The Oakes Ames Memorial Hall, members of all classes were awed by decorations which kept with the theme of 'Midnight Masquerade' — the masks of black and gold that adorned the tables. Dazzlingly dressed couples spun across the dance floor following the lead of King Jim Crowley, Queen Natalie Talbott, and their court. With school spirit at a peak, the 1993 Semi-Formal was truly an event to remember for all those who attended.

While dancing with her date Andy Carr, Colleen Doherty rejoices in her election to Junior Court.

Hip-Hop, Bebop and Pop

NHS school dances are an opportunity for members of all four classes to come together in a different atmosphere other than the structured one of the regular school day. Lunch tables give way to the DJ's stage and dance floor, while the sound of the periodic bells is replaced by a variety of music. Whether hip-hop, metal, or slow music, there is something for every dancer. To every dancer the partner in his or her arms is a welcome alternative to heavy books.

Spirited dancers Holly Quaglia, Craig Wencis, Megan Brazao, and Allan George share laughs and dance moves.

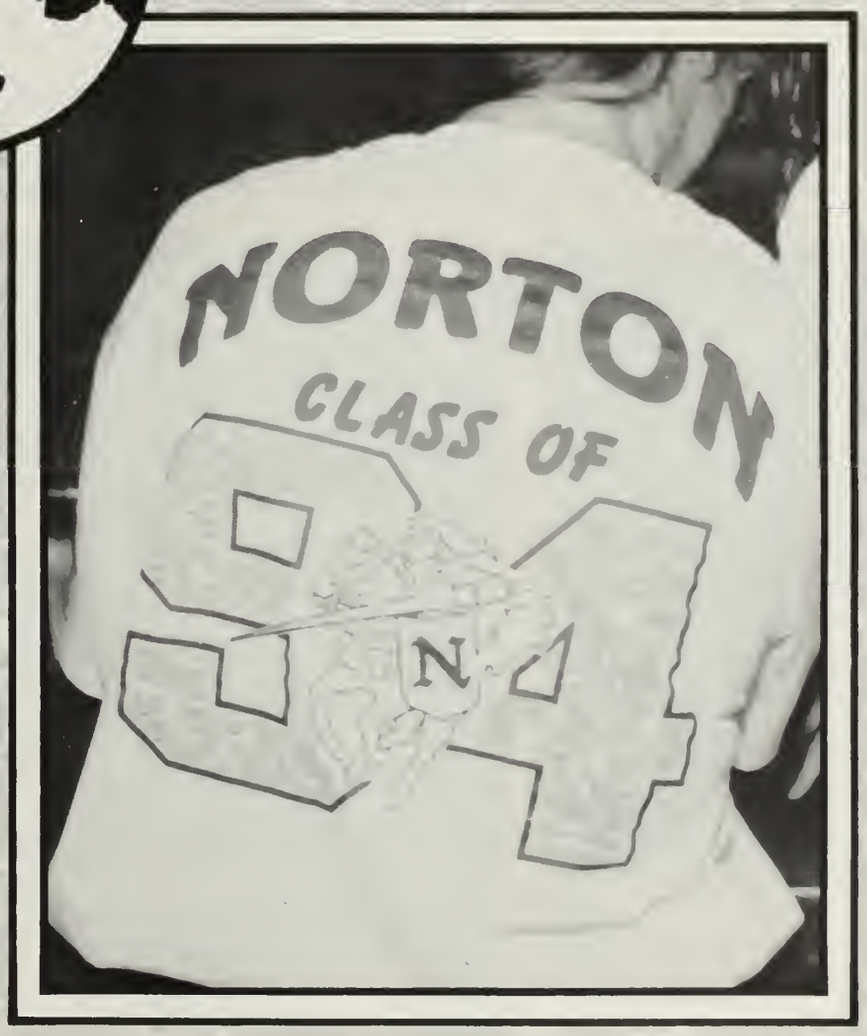
While Linde Arnold contemplates the dance floor, Julie Simpson and Kelly Carvalho appear content to watch from the sides.

That's a smile that Jessica Royal would like to move onto the dance floor.

Jenn Sireci and her date jive to the music of the 1993 Freshman Welcome Dance.

Matt Eveline is awed by Stacy Bertram's mastery of the new Electric Slide.

Goodbye NHS, Hello Outside World!



seniors 94

It seems odd that the first activity the seniors host is a Freshman Welcome Dance that reminds us of our own humble beginnings as freshmen at NHS. The faithful who have attended the dances know that the music, the dances, and the people themselves have changed greatly in four years. Observing the young freshman dancers makes us truly realize how we ourselves have changed. The trials of freshman insecurity, the sophomore blahs, and the anticipations of junior year have been replaced by both stressful, and enjoyable times in our last year as students of NHS. Many of us took the SAT's or ACH's for the last time, we went through reams of paper trying to find some way to please the 'College Application Beastie', we participated in an incredible amount of extracurricular activities, we worked, we tried to get some homework done, and every once in a great while, we snagged a few z's. One must wonder whether relaxing activities such as Spirit Week, the senior play, and the class trip are a relief more to the seniors or to their dedicated advisers. In any case, the smiles seen so often on the faces of the seniors of 1994 are most likely due to the fact that we are so close to the fulfillment of the first of our lifetime goals- GRADUATION!!

The members of the senior Homecoming Court and their escorts line up for the first of many pictures. Allison Gentille, Craig Johnson, Julie Hagstrom, Tom Cameron, Nicole Hamilton, Jim Crowley, Rachel McManuis, Luke Adams, Chris DeMartino, and Natalie Talbott.

Despite their vast knowledge, seniors must still carry mountains of books, as evidenced by Suzanne Harrington.

Donuts, juice, and stimulating poetry are all part of 'Breakfast with the Poets', which has transformed these NHS students into famous poets of the past. "What's Cookin'?"

Despite the dreary weather, the senior class cookout was a success as the first of several senior activities. After fueling up with barbequed hot dogs and hamburgers, the seniors began the 1993 'Fall Games'. Fearless members participated in the balloon toss, while those who wanted to get a little closer to nature sunk their hands into the mud during the wheelbarrow race. The most coordinated participants picked their partners for the three-legged race, and rookies and experienced players alike enjoyed a pick-up game of football. Spectators looked on and cheered for their friends while showing good sportsmanship towards their competitors. Most seniors and their advisers would agree that the cookout was a wonderful way to end a Wednesday (and miss fifth period)!

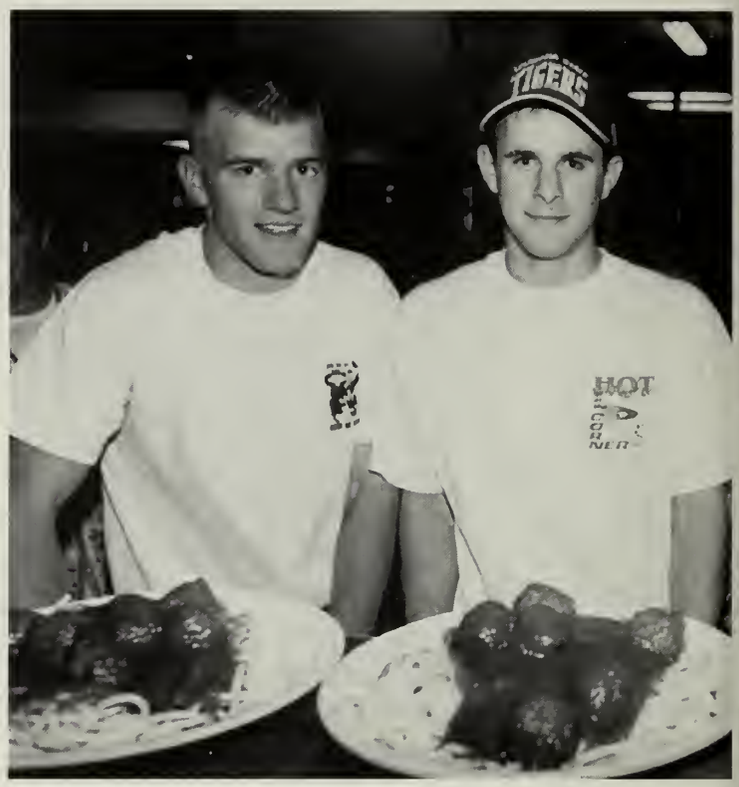
With advisers Mrs. D'Onofrio, Ms. Dziejma, Mr. Nuttall, Mrs. Reddy, and Mrs. Taylor, the Senior Class Spaghetti Supper was a great success. The tables were nicely set with red and white checkered placemats. The dimmed cafeteria created a festive atmosphere for the evening. The decorative scarecrows greeted the people as they came to support the Class of '94. The helpful seniors who worked at the supper contributed to the pleasant atmosphere. When there were lulls during the supper, friends had time to catch up on the day's news and compare stories of the supper. Congratulations to the Class of '94 for a successful supper!



"Which plate of pasta will you choose?" ask Larry Taylor and Bill Gendrolius.

It's service with a smile as Lori Briggs and Katie Wheeler man one of the refreshment tables.

Previews of our Future World

juniors 95

Junior year comes with the realization that not too far in the future, all scholastic efforts will be rewarded at last. The energy juniors gain from this fact is channeled into various activities that demonstrate spirit for their school and for their class. The class of '95 kept visions of Christmas trees and candy canes dancing in our heads for the few weeks leading up to vacation, and the pizza parties following home basketball games elevated the spirits of all the spectators. Most importantly, the juniors hosted the '94 prom with the theme of 'Hold On to the Night' at the Taunton Holiday Inn. Most would agree that the continued spirit and enthusiasm of the class of '95 creates a welcome diversion from the regular school day.

sophomores 96

This year's sophomore class, the class of '96, has gone through dramatic changes in the past year. As sophomores, they no longer have the freshman fears, already having settled into high school life. On the other hand, they don't have the anxieties of the upperclassmen who have to worry about the SAT's, completing college applications, and the world of work. The sophomore class was lead by President Kerry O'Connell, Vice President Jaime Klawitter, Secretary Kristine Newcomb, and Co-treasurers Patrick Drane and Kelly Jackson. The class collaborated on the creation of a wonderful Pep Rally wall and succeeded in displaying its spirit and imagination by winning the wall-decorating contest for the past two years. With this enthusiasm, the class of '96 is destined to succeed. Good luck in future class activities!

freshmen 97

Every member of the freshman class, no doubt, has experienced 'First-day Freshman Fear', an epidemic which strikes first year high school students all over the country in late August and reaches its peak when the 6:00 a.m. alarm rings with panicked fury on that dreaded day. With heavy feet, members of the class of '97 walk to their bus stops and watch in envy as upperclassmen drive by in their very own cars. However, upon entering the school, fortunate freshmen are directed to their homerooms. Such geographic assistance continues throughout the day. Although the size and number of the veteran students that flood the maze of hallways may at first seem intimidating, with time the former eighth-graders become comfortable with the school and their new freedoms.

After School, Another World

Gagnon's Mixed Nuts

An ancient deity known as 'the Dragon Lady' presides over a strange human-like species that often remains in the depths of a 'Yearbook Suite' for hours at a time, emerging only to trudge off into the night, and sleep where they fall. Territorial disputes and challenges to authority are settled through 'cropper fights' or other violent means. The children of Dragon horde computers from outlying areas, racing furtively down the hallway on carts or rolling chairs for the return trip. Energy for these exploits is provided by enormous amounts of pizza, snack food, and Lamb Around the World consumed daily. They are excitable creatures, often leaping from desk to desk in moments of inspiration and at the mere mention of the words 'sophomore basic', they catapult into throes of despair. Much of what sophisticated society knows of this species comes from remarkably well documented records, consisting of a 'Doodle Pole' and several file cabinets full of photographs. And so, one asks, what is this odd variation of humanity?

Up with yearbook! Triumphing over immense odds and immense deadlines is the obsession of these students and advisers (Hurray for Mrs. Gagnon and Miss Cloutier!) who devote their lives to yearbook from September to February vacation at which point they collapse, but only after stabbing their editor-in-chief with Mighty Morphin Power Ranger Light Up Swords! (We love you, Mr. Editor!) We know it sounds crazy, but we love this place! It is truly awesome to work with such creative people! Okay, so now that it's almost over, what do we do now?

The hardest copy to write is always that about oneself.

Go to the Head of the Class

Adviser Mrs. Dolores Robbins leads the Jean G. Findlater Chapter of the Norton High School Honor Society, an active group that contributes greatly to our community and school. In early fall, members offered their services to an L.G. Nourse staff happy to return to their school. Community spirit was also exhibited in the collection of canned goods for donation to the S.O.S. Soup Kitchen. The Society contributed purple and white balloons to Spirit Week, an event which culminated in the Society-sponsored Semi-Formal. Scholarships aid seniors who plan on higher education. The most satisfying event of the year is perhaps the Honor Society Induction in the spring. By the light of the candles of Scholarship, Service, Character, and Leadership, new members are welcomed into the Society to continue the dedicated service of the National Honor Society.

The delicate expertise of Justin Rounds brings his pumpkin to life.

The Renaissance chapter of the National Art Honor Society was extremely successful in completing many endeavors this year. Service work, such as the L.G.N. move and window painting, provided money for society scholarships. The society also took part in the annual Semi-Formal at Oakes Ames Memorial Hall, the system-wide sale of painted pumpkins, and the joint induction ceremony. The efforts of this society and the increased support of the school system and town provide the Art Honor Society members with financial support for their future artistic efforts. This group seems to live by Paul Klee's belief, "Art does not reproduce the visible; rather, it makes visible," with their colorful contributions to the hallways, graduation stage, and ceiling tiles. Here's to imagination and creativity!

Hablamos Espanol

Students in Spanish Honor Society have a unique ability to comprehend a second language increasingly heard in this corner of Massachusetts. Such comprehension extended to enjoying and sharing Spanish traditions. Spanish Honor Society members helped the French Club to plan the Mardi Gras/Bonhomme Carnival celebration, where French and Spanish students participated in a gala designed to put aside thought of the Lenten season ahead. Two bilingual queens were chosen for Mr. Bonhomme Carnival, while others demonstrated their limbo talents or 'locomoted' through the hallways. All participants agreed that these festivities with a little Spanish Honor Society flair brightened the morning.

Legends, Cameras, and Art

Anyone driving past the school late one night in November would have been astounded to see the members of the four honor societies filing onto a coach bus, dressed to the hilt in their best "jammies"?!! Yes, it's true! These talented students were about to embark upon a whirlwind tour of our nation's capital, a trip that required one very benevolent bus driver to push the pedal through 8 hours of darkness. And the tour began! Smithsonian castle, camera hassles, National Air and Space. Flight, transportation, government administration, quick around the "Mall" pace. Lincoln, Vietnam too, flags red, white, and blue, Gallery of Art, and grace. American Museum, imposing colosseum, political and homeless face. Washington success, "Midnight Madness!", from history to now we traced!

The newly dedicated women's Vietnam War Memorial, which recognizes the efforts of women in the Vietnam War, inspired a feeling of awe and reverance in those who came to pay their respects.

Art changes so often in today's world that Bekki Moore, Amy Simpson, Julie Simpson, and Jessica Kuszaj's interaction with this functional art made them artists reflecting the day's message of self-awareness.

Shown here in the cozy bus seats, Carrie Zawislak proved that as long as she had her favorite music playing on her walkman she could sleep anywhere!

Members of the four honor societies paused for a minute to pose for a group shot with the Capitol Building in the background.

As members of The Lance, the school's only current events publication, budding journalists played an integral part in keeping their classmates informed. Paint, Poetry, and Prose

Students were able to have their thoughts and emotions expressed through their art and their writing in this year's edition of Local Colour. This year's themes, The Lighter Side of Life, The Darker Side of Life, Sweet Emotion, The World Around Me, and Misfits, allowed a variety of creativity to be showcased. Under the supervision of Mr. Hickey and Mrs. DiModica, the staff worked wonders and created, once again, another noteworthy publication of Local Colour.

'Peppy' speeches by Linde Arnold and Kristine Newcomb fired up the crowd and our victorious football team at the Pep Rally.

Norton High's Pep Club encouraged school spirit by designing and exhibiting many posters supporting the different teams during their respective seasons. The whole school was alerted to upcoming games by simply walking through the decorated halls. Under the new adviser, Becky Blumenthal, this year's Pep Club continued activities started in past years. One such spirited activity the Pep Club sponsored and organized was the Pep Rally. Held the night before the Homecoming Game, that evening activity united the school toward the common goal of a Homecoming Game success!

"I'm a Lumberjack and I'm okay, I sleep all night . . ." STOP. It's time for us lumberjacks of the future to question the attitudes that allow us to "sleep all night" without regret in regards to the environmental destruction we are all responsible for. Why is it necessary to envelop popular breakfast foods in 3 layers of packaging? Why do we package our babies in similarly excessive materials? Who are we to claim our rights over those of a defenseless owl in Washington? Indeed, who are we to claim dominance over every living organism and natural resource, over this one shared earth that is our home? Membership in any environmental organization requires answers to these provocative questions. Combining such inquiry with active intervention, the Greenpeace group visits the elementary students in an effort to inform them of their role in the preservation of the natural world. The recycling boxes that dot the school remind us to "reduce, reuse, and recycle." It is imperative that we realize it is never too late to start being environmentally conscious.

Can you imagine being a political prisoner who was arrested for speaking his beliefs? Not everyone can. In America, we are all free to express our ideas and beliefs, according to the 1st amendment of the Constitution. Students of NHS who believe these rights should be the same for all humans worldwide join Amnesty International. The co-leaders of this group Holly Quaglia and Jessica Kuszaj try to create awareness of many such issues. Writing letters to prisoners and signing petitions dealing with many subjects are some of the many activities Amnesty participates in.

Divide and Conquer

This past year, 1993-94, proved to be a triumphant one for Norton High's Math Team. Finishing second and third at two of their meets, these math wizards overcame the mind-boggling problems put before them. Freshman Robert Smuts, Sophomore Ginny Jerome, Junior David Wagner, and Senior Matt Drane were among the highest scoring participants at these meets. The team competed with the area schools, Foxboro, Dighton-Rehoboth, Attleboro, Franklin, and Mansfield. Not only did they participate in meets, they also took part in the New England Math League. Tests were given each month, and students receiving top scores were entered into the regional level of competition. From the simplest arithmetic to advanced trigonometry, the Math Team derived all the answers!

Concentrated effort is what Kristen Bischoff had to complete another successful math league test.

Concentrating on all the aspects of science, the Science Olympiad Team did everything from building bridges and making pendulums to writing and doing experiments with rocks, minerals, and chemicals. The group placed well in their division, competing against other area teams including Bridgewater-Raynham, Medway, Oliver Ames, Medfield, and Attleboro. They also competed in a regional meet held in February at Oliver Ames. Science Olympiad, coached by Mrs. DiModica, encouraged scientists of the future to get started experimenting and questioning, while in high school.

Of, By, and For the Students

The Student Council of 1993-94 played an active part at Norton High School by helping to put together a dynamite Semi-formal and a spirited Homecoming. In addition to these efforts, Council members collaborated on an eventful Spirit Week which included Purple and White day and Sports day. The most important contribution by far, was their donation of over $1,000 to the local Fire Department Santa Fund, which was used to provide food baskets and toys to the less fortunate families of Norton. Through all of their efforts, the Student Council has been successful in creating a positive atmosphere at Norton High School.

Everyone should be proud of the Santa Drive results!

Lending a Hand

ing hands and heads together is the motto of N.H.S. SADD organization.

Lean On Me

When I was your age . . .

So familiar are we with the impending imprisonment effected by a long winded story teller that by the time he has reached the personal pronoun, we are already shooting away at warp speed 9. As seemingly outlandish as this old yarn about a tortuous uphill-both-ways-in-a-snowstorm trip to school may become, shouldn't your average daily newscast concerning roller rink shootings and drunk driving fatalities be considered as outlandish? Clearly the passive acceptance of such atrocities implies an unhealthy society. It is up to our generation to at least attempt to remedy some of these ills, and it is here that N.H.S.'s Peer Leadership group comes in. Members, through their moral and intellectual example, tried to demonstrate that a drug and alcohol free life is a good life. Their presentations to the Middle School bring relevant social issues to light, and activities during the Prom and Spirit Weeks serve as a visual reminder to other students not to drink and drive.

Being a Peer Leader was a big responsibility, one that requires courage and an open mind. These challenges, however, were balanced by a sense of satisfaction that one has enlightened at least a few students, and taken a step towards a world where the phrase 'When I was your age' is followed not by a horror story, but by some humorous, if worn out, hyperbole.

The talented voices of Aimee Tessier, Nicole Hamilton, and Kelly Celeste contributed to the great sounds of the chorus!

Listen to the Sounds. . .

This year the NHS Chorus gave several stellar performances that ranged from a system-wide Christmas Concert (that will hopefully become an annual tradition!) to a Solo/Ensemble Concert where singers of all ages were able to showcase their individual talents as well as their incredible group harmonies. The Spring Concert was also a chance for the chorus to demonstrate their talents. Community spirited chorus members used their talents to brighten the lives of town citizens by singing at the lighting of the Common and by Christmas carolling at local nursing homes. This extra touch of musicality demonstrated an artistic and prideful interest in Norton, while giving the singers valuable experience.

Music to the Max

Once upon a time, there existed a question in the minds of the musicians and twirlers who lived in a little town tucked away in a remote corner of Massachusetts. Why did those older musicians stomp around big green fields amid legions of screaming people and boys covered in mud? What were they doing out there in all types of climatic extremes? And why were they always screaming about feet, stomachs, chests, elbows, chins, eyes, and marbles? These questions plagued the fledgling musicians until early one idyllic morn. A great philosopher from the land of MacMullion, following the Pied Piper of Harmony, came to the town and over a cup of coffee enlightened the musicians as to the reason for such insanity. Those older musicians were in the NORTON HIGH LANCER BAND!! "Aha!" said the young musicians, for they understood that membership in any band is justification for all sorts of unusual activities, even long bus trips and wild frisbee games and a diet consisting mostly of McDonald's fast food. So from that moment on, the young musicians of the little, remote town lived joyous lives because they could explain any spontaneously exuberant act merely by saying "It's a band thing!" And so they played happily, musically, ever after.

Ginny Jerome proudly shows off her Norton High spirit and gives the half-time performance its heartbeat!

Time Out!

Many of this year's assemblies concerned relevant social problems and were eye-openers for Norton High School students. "Eddie Was Here" demonstrated in a graphic manner the effects of alcohol abuse. The principal of Newton High School enlightened us as to our need to be more culturally aware and tolerant as the town becomes more diverse. In a more amusing vein, the French and Spanish Mardi Gras involved many costumed students who danced, ate, and broke pinatas at this light-hearted celebration. Whether or not students learned the lessons of these assemblies, they certainly enjoyed getting out of classes!

Pedro's fine feathered friend faces imminent destruction at the hands of Christen Geary.

The enthusiastic participation of the audience brought assemblies to life.

A speaker from Newton High School demonstrated documented prejudices and injustices that occur daily in today's liberated society.

e Early Days of Romance

After a traumatic move and months of financial unrest, the Norton Public Schools were at last able to resume their normal operations, much to the relief of the dislocated students and staff. The momentous job was in part completed by volunteers from a few NHS organizations, most notably the Honor Societies and the Marching Band. With the help of these willing students, desks and chairs were returned to their original classrooms, books were organized and shelved, and bulletin boards were decorated with signs that ecstatically proclaimed "Welcome Back!" Returning to their old schools was a 'trip down memory lane' for many, as reminisces of recess, fat crayons, and line leaders abounded. Although it was not discussed, many volunteers whispered a silent plea that all future budgetary crises would be avoided, so that Norton's future, indeed the 'future of America' would have the opportunity to benefit as greatly as past generations have from the community-backed efforts of the Norton Public Schools.

Shooting Stars

The boys basketball team coached by Mr. Kelley, was a force to be reckoned with this past year under the senior leadership of point guard Dylan Ribeiro, forward Bob Congdon, and shooting guard Rob Simonetti. Starters Paul Danforth and Ed Wencis also added to the team's energy.

It was a momentous season for girls' basketball coach Mr. Nuttall, who achieved the 150th win of his career. The girls team was led by senior Melanie Kiely, who along with fellow starters Renee Sayce, Jenn Kirrane and Kerry O'Connell gave NHS another memorable Lady Lancer season.

Set to Success!

It is difficult for one who works primarily with words to describe the emotional turmoil that crossed Mr. Leddy's face as he tried to formulate his opinion of the 1993 volleyball team. A wry grimace in response to thoughts of hours of grueling practice, twisted anguish at the memories of the disappointment on the girls' faces after a bitter defeat, pride and exultation in the reminiscence of a triumphal win - all these emotions and others indiscernible lingered briefly before the eyes of this writer. And then frustration appeared, for words were inadequate to describe such a cohesive team. Perhaps, Mr. Leddy, the greatest compliment you gave your 1993 team was this moment of stunned silence in response to queries about "the best team ever."

Concentration is the key to Melanie Kiely's success as captain and key player on the volleyball team.

Back Row: Kelly Portanova, Lisa Byrnes, Katie Suydan, Christine Chrzanowski, Natasha Aptt, Jessica Fahey, Karyl Charles, and Coach Peter Leddy.

Good sportsmanship and optimistic attitudes, both on and off the court, made this year's group of Lady Lancers, "the best team ever," according to Coach Peter Leddy.

eeded this year!

A flash of purple on an autumn day, sprinting Lancers on their way inspired by the sights, the shouts of cheerleaders saying "They'll win! No doubt!"
An ecstatic cheer for a play well done regardless of score, the Lancers have won.
They've got the support of purple and white,
the loyalty of fans, and cheerleader might.
Demonstrations of fierce purple pride enthusiasm too, cheerleaders take it in stride, and never let Norton Lancer Spirit cool, with cheers ringing on the playing fields of our school!

Just Kicking Around

Were the soccer teams just kicking around? Only if "kicking around" meant they avoided their opponents. The Lancer soccer teams improved steadily this year with the help of their coaches.

The boys team, coached by Roger Ramsey, survived a tough season this year. Such concentrated effort ensured that the team would not go wrong.

The exacting standards of coach Kevin MacCaffrie, brought the Lady Lancer soccer team to new heights. The steadily improving players made every effort to face their competitors without compromise. The unique skills of each player helped to create a spirit of cooperation and motivated the girls towards a successful season.

Good luck to these growing teams in the coming years!

A feeling of achievement.
The "Runner's High" at the end of a race.
A chance to compete and improve physical health.
Ample opportunity to reduce stress and notice the ever-changing environment.

All these reasons and more comprise the driving motivation of cross-country runners, many of whom make running a year-round sport. Such dedication paid off in the meets of last fall for both the boys and girls teams, whose members experienced great improvements in their times. With continued efforts, the team will become an imposing rival in the South Shore League in upcoming seasons.

When Push Comes to Shove

Football, the classic high school sport, is an important part of life for many Norton High School students. In late August, potential players gather onto the field, hoping to be given the chance to shine as an important part of the Lancer football team. Linebackers dream of the glory of crushing the opposition, allowing the quarterback to throw a perfect spiral to a receiver in the endzone. The fans cheer, waving purple and white streamers in the sun on a perfect fall day, as their team celebrates another unbelievable victory. Then reality sinks in. The football team actually requires months of grueling practices, sweating during boiling summers and withstanding the bitter sting of winter winds. The dedicated fans often brave the cold to watch the Lancers play. Despite such adverse conditions, the team was always pumped up and sprinted onto the field believing nothing could stop the Lancer power!

As the opposition tries to slow him down, Allan George brings the Lancers a step closer to victory.

A powerful force both on and off the field, Jim O'Neill intimidates the opposing team.

Before snapping a pass, Keith Callahan scans the field, looking for an open man.

An open field is an opportunity for Luke Adams to sprint for the end zone.

Bobby Mills continues to struggle toward a first down under the pressure of the opposing team's defense.

Dennis Lynch helps to clear the way for Jim Crowley as he cruises towards a touchdown.

Off and Running

Joined by energetic new members, the girls' and boys' track teams sprinted off in search of team and personal triumphs this year on the Norton track as well as on those of our competitors. Led by seniors such as Christina Maginnis, Kathryn Maher, Lori Briggs, Joe Scherma, Larry Taylor, and Clifton Zawasky, the Norton teams were examples of sportsmanship and effort.

Despite unfavorable records, both the boys and girls tennis teams experienced a building season. Stephen Maher, captain of the boys tennis team playing first singles, proved to be an admirable foe to the best players of the dominating South Shore League. Amy Frazier, the first singles player for the girls tennis team, challenged many of her adversaries. The girls team, coached by Ms. Terri Mullen, found strong points in singles players, Melissa Cole and Christen Geary, who continued to improve throughout the year. Mike Moran, Marc Castrechini, David Wagner, and John Coffey will be assets to the team in the future. Although the tennis teams have faced many tough competitors, these Lancers have strived to meet their challenges. Look ahead to the future.

"No way! I missed it. The ball is out?" questions Melissa Cole.

"So I hit it over there?" asks Carrie Zawisl

Kristen Sunde! Nice form. Is that a forehand or a backhand?

"Another day, another practice", says Coach Mullen.

"Strrrike" Zone

The Lancer Softball team had a challenging season last year. Through determination and teamwork, the team acquired many victories. Melanie Kiely, Shannon Bonacci, Renee Sayce added to the effort made by the team. Good job, Lady Lancers!

Lisa Byrnes delivers another devastating fastball for the Lancers.

Renee Sayce pouts,"Nobody hits the ball to me!"

Shannon Bonacci's quick reflexes and even quicker throw end the inning with a crucial out.

A small step for Kerry O'Connell, but a big run for the Lady Lancers.

"How fast did you say the catcher could throw the ball?" asks Allan George.

The boys' baseball team, with the leadership of Coach Dave Mollica, Allan George, Bill Gendrolius, and Rob Simonetti, experienced an exciting '93 season. Pitcher Jeff LaConte wowed the opposing teams with his fast and accurate pitches, while the rest of the team supported him defensively. The fielders showed their athletic potential throughout the season against foes such as Carver and Hanover. Here's to 1994!

Front row: Rob Simonetti, Rick Dudley, Jim Cameron, Scott Naismith, Jeff Cruff, Bill Gendrolius, and Bobby Mills.

"That's a STRIKE?!" asks Bill Gendrolius in disbelief.

With great concentration, Rick Dudley prepares to throw a strike.

Par for the Course

This year's golf team, coached by Mr. Nuttall was very dedicated though very small in members. They were committed players who enjoyed their sport. Led by seniors Dylan Ribeiro, Justin Precourt, and Bill Souza, the team grew as individuals as well as players under Mr. Nuttall's coaching efforts.

"I swing....and I miss....again," moans Bill Souza.

Shhh! Don't interrupt Dylan Ribeiro's concentration or he'll miss the putt.

Front row: Justin Precourt, John Connolly, William Cady. Back row: David Solari, William Souza, Dylan Ribeiro, Coach Al Nuttall.

Marc Castrechini, you can juggle and play tennis, too?

Renee Sayce! Keep going --- you're heading for home.

"How many times do I have to do this?" asks Steven Yorke.

Jeff,

Thank you for the wonderful gifts you have given us. Your laughter, your smile, your humor and your thoughtfulness.

Most of all thank you for the loving memories we will have for a lifetime. We are proud to be your parents.

Love,
Mom & Dad

We are very proud of you, Kristine! As you put away your treasures of yesterday, hold onto the memories. Today is a new beginning.

Pursue your goals; make your dreams a reality; and most important, keep your sense of humor.

Love,
Mom & Dad

Colophon

Sojourn '94 was printed by Taylor Publishing Company in Dallas, TX. This 176 page book was created using the Macintosh version of Page, Type and Indexvision. The selling price was $37 if paid in full and $40 if paid in installments. A total of 350 books were sold.

The cover design is a painting using four colors. The typeface is Caslon Openface with Gold foil for embossing.

Caslon Openface and Malibu fonts are used in the opening headlines. In the Extracurricular section, Riviera Script is the dominant font while the Malibu font is utilized in the Sports section. The Ads have a variety of fonts.

Dropped caps and spot color can be found throughout the book. Royal Purple is used in the Senior section and Copper, in the Underclassmen section. Gold is printed on the opening page and Caymen Teal, the opening section.

The staff would like to thank Mrs. Karen Devitt and Mrs. Natalie Spence, customer service representatives.

Thanks also to Joe Geoffrey of Chestnut Hill Studios for pictures, film, and patience.

A very big THANKS to our advisers, Mrs. Gagnon and Miss Cloutier. We couldn't have done this without you.

And thanks to the staff who worked diligently and dedicated themselves to creating this fantastic yearbook!

Dear Friends,

In the past few months as we have worked on preparing this yearbook, each of us has thought about what the theme, "Imagine: One World, One People" means to us. Even within the limits of our everyday lives and the awareness of our individual philosophies and personalities, we have come to know that a spirit of cooperation is necessary to accomplish any task. During the course of this year, the yearbook staff has been molded into a group of dedicated individuals whose responsibility is to work together for a common goal.

Likewise, school spirit should be exhibited in all aspects of student life. This spirit of unity comes across in the classroom, on the playing field, and in the activities in which we are involved.

"One World, One People" expresses the idea that we are a world of individuals who must be unified through our common bond as peoples on this earth.

Sojourn 1994 can be thought of as a microcosm of society and the affinity of its peoples. As a publication of this school, we have recorded school events and activities, that each in its own way, have enhanced the school spirit of Norton High. As we venture out into the world, we must all remember that success will be accomplished only if all people everywhere cooperate towards common goals.
